GIRL'S STRANGE DOINGS

LUELLA EMRIE'S ACTIONS CAUSED HER FRIENDS MUCH ANXIETY.

Suddenly Disappeared from This City Last June, but Is Now Employed at St. Louis,

Miss Luella Emrie, formerly of this city, has caused her friends a great deal of apprehension by failing to acquaint them her whereabouts and for a time it was feared that her rather mysterious disappearance was involuntary. Last summer Miss Emrie lived at Petoskey, Mich., where she was engaged by Mrs. S. S. Gage as housekeeper and companion. When the season was over she obtained employment as housekeeper with a family in Cincinnati. As the family decided to spend the present summer in the East they decided to dispense with her services and she arranged to return to Mrs. Gage. The middle of June she left Cincinnati, ostensibly to go to Petoskey by way of Indianapolis. Subsequently a brother of Mrs. W. S. Turner, $34 Gilbert avenue, Cincinnati, saw He thinks that was about June 25. She informed Mrs. Turner's brother that she had just purchased her ticket to Petoskey and that she intended to leave for that city that evening. Several weeks passed and Mrs. Gage heard nothing of Miss Emrie. At first she supposed Miss Emrie had been delayed, but upon writing to Cincinnati ascertained that the young woman had left there at the designated time. As nothing more was heard from her, either directly or through Indianapolis or Cincin-nati friends, it was feared some ill had befallen her. Letters were written to a number of her old friends here, but none of them were able to throw any light on the case, although she had been seen on the streets of this city by several people.

Miss Emrie went to St. Louis instead of Petoskey, She is now living South Jefferson avenue. was learned from Mrs. Stew-art, corner of St. Clair and Alabama streets, where Miss Emrie remained about a week. Sterling R. Holt Says It Would No Help His Party to Fuse with Populists on Electoral Ticket.

There will be no fusion between the Pop dists and Democrats in Indiana upon the electoral ticket. The Populist State convention, it will be remembered, left this matter in the hands of a committee of thirteen, with power to act. The only chance it will have to exercise this power, however, will be in nominating a full ticket of Populist electors. The Democratic State committee, the only body in that party with any power in the matter, is not disposed to meet them or concede to them

Owners Date Their Trouble from the Chicago Convention-Silver Craze the Cause.

The Chicago platform is charged by L. M. Howe with bringing about the necessity for appointing a receiver by Judge Brown, of the Circuit Court, yesterday for the Howe pump and engine works. The receiver was appointed on petition of Florence A. Howe, secretary of the company. It was filed yesterday afternoon by attorney Charles F. Coffin, and in ten minutes Edward S. Gaylord, treasurer of the company, had been appointed receiver and had given bond in the sum of $7,500. This bond, it was stated, would cover the funds that would come into the hands of the receiver, although the greater than that sum. The assets are given at from $126,000 to $150,000, while the liabilities will amount to a little less than pay all its indebtedness in full as soon as it can dispose of some of its municipal bonds, and will then ask that the receiver they were issued. During last spring the company notified these bond brokers of several towns in which the company would probably get contracts, and after an examination the brokers said they would take the bonds. Several of these contracts have been completed and others are under way. Last week L. M. Howe, general manager of the company, was in Chicago and was told by the bond brokers that it would be impossible for them to take any more bonds. for they simply could not dispose of them under the present condition of the money market. There is not the slightest chance to sell such bonds, the brokers told him. Mr. Howe came home and was notified by one of the company's local creditors, who holds bonds as collateral, that the company would be expected to take up the collateral as soon as possible, for it would be impossible for the creditor to hold it

These conditions furnished the immediate cause of the application for a receiver.

While the company has more than $2 for very dollar of its liabilities, it is impossible for it to realize on this class of its assets, which comprise most of the total, outside of the actual value of the plant.

Of the liabilities $24,000 is secured by collateral, bonds of municipalities being given. The other liabilities amount to about $20,-000 and are scattered over the country. BROKERS COULDN'T HANDLE BONDS. It is not strange that the brokers in Chicago were compelled to notify the company that they could take no more municipal bonds when the situation in New York city is considered. Ten days ago the city of New York offered $4,000,000 of gold 31/2per-cent, municipal bonds for sale, and bids were received for less than $1,000,000, and on this amount most of the bids were practically no premium. premium, the bids being greatly in excess of the amount offered. Those bonds were payable in gold, while the municipal bonds ield by the Howe company are payable in legal-tender money. "Our entire trouble." said L. M. Howe, general manager of the company, "dates from the adoption of the Chicago platform, and I am frank to say that I fully believe that the free-silver craze is solely respersible for it. Before there seemed to be any chance for the adoption of a free silver platform there was not a ripple to disturb our prosperity. We were doing a large business and making money, and if any one had said to me two months ago that we would be compelled to take this action to save ourselves I would simply have laughed at him. There is no question in my mind that free-silver agitation is en-tirely responsible for this trouble, and there is also no doubt that if the night of the 3d of November shows that M. Kinley is elected we will be able to discharge our receiver within the month following or

The assets of the company are sufficient to make it certain that no creditor will lose anything, and the men connected with the company think they will be able to take charge of its affairs as soon as financial matters become more settled and there is less distrust. They think this may possibly occur before the election if it becomes sufficiently apparent that silver cannot care sufficiently apparent that silver cannot carry the day. The receiver will continue the plant in operation and fill all present contracts. It is not yet decided whether new business will be sought until after the termination of this trouble. THE RUSHVILLE PLAN.

This company was the originator of the plan whereby municipal corporations, restricted by law as to debt, may make public improvements, such as building electric light and water plants. This company recently completed a water and light plant at Rushville under and now has others under way. The plant was constructed under a peculiar arrangement, termed by the contractors the "Rushville plan," as it is the first water works ever constructed under such a plan. The object of the plan is to enable cities burdened with a heavy debt to evade the burdened with a heavy debt to evade the 2 per cent. limit statute in constructing public works. The city of Rushville could not issue bonds to exceed $25,000, and a plant such as contempiated could not be built for less than $85,000. To evade this restriction the Howe Pumping and Engine Company suggested a scheme, which was acted upon. The Rushville Water Company, with a paid-up capital stock of $35,000, was formed. The city of Rushville took 310 shares of stock and the Howe company forty shares. To pay its $31,000 stock, the city issued $26,000 of municipal bonds, and sold its old electric light plant to the Howe company for $5,000. The Rushville Water Company then entered into a contract with the Howe company to con-contract with the Howe company to con-struct a plant for $55,000. The plant was bonded for $56,000, which with the $35,000 of paid-up stock, represents the $55,000 involred in the contract.

The Rushville Water Company has now leased the plant to the Howe company for twenty years, the city to pay $7,000 per annum for light and water used for municipal purposes. This money will be paid to a trustee, appeinted by the city.
